Llovera has vast experience and self-awareness, and shares with his audiences his passion for self-motivation and personal reinvention. He is the author of a bestselling autobiography, No Limits, published in 2011, a true portrait of his determination, effort and will to live and achieve his dreams.

Born in the small principality of Andorra, Albert was educated within the elite sport within the world of skiing. With only 17 years old he was the youngest sportsman who took part in the XIV OLYMPIC WINTER GAMES at SARAJEVO in 1984. A year later, participating in the European Cup in that same city, the tragedy was crossed in his professional career and an inopportune accident ended with the cruel diagnosis: breakage of the dorsal vertebrae. From now on, life would accompany him in a wheelchair. After more than almost 3 decades, Albert has learned to live with his disability and has shown that in his desire to excel can overcome any obstacle no matter how big.
